La Anunciación

First I put on the horse. Then I put on the legs, the two bare feet. Next, I put on

The earth. And I walked for you. I walked you to Granada. After that

To Bethlehem. First I followed the star. O!, I thought.
I turned at the light. I found

The gray bus from Osingo. I took it into Chilón—to Lipan's Abarrotes. Calle Limones,

Number twenty-two. Two men were standing outside, smoking cigarettes. I took off my hat. They Disappeared. Lipan was at the counter. Lipan, I said, I need a broom. The horse

Forgot its tail. I see, he said I have one cheap. Now

We could ride to December.
